

All Fired Up

By S.K. Bain

On Tuesday, February 17, 2026, a rare astronomical convergence occurred as an annular / “Ring of Fire” solar eclipse coincided with the start of Lunar New Year—the Year of the Fire Horse in the Chinese zodiac. This alignment only occurs once every 60 years, and the last time it occurred was in 1966, the year of the founding of the Church of Satan. So, naturally some killin’ had to be done.

This story, then, will surprise no one:

36 Horses Die in Massive North Carolina Barn Fire that Burned for Hours

<https://people.com/36-horses-die-in-massive-north-carolina-barn-fire-11907885>

Baby eaters got no qualms about BBQing horses. Year of the Fire Horse, burning horses...you get the point.

(Left) Anton Lavey, Founder of the Church of Satan. (Right) The burning barn in Randolph County.

Start Your Engines

Even as fitting a tribute/sacrifice as that was, however, I knew there had to be more to it, and sure enough there is. The fire took place in Randolph County, North Carolina, home of NASCAR legends Richard and Kyle Petty. Richard “The King” Petty famously drove the #43 car for the vast majority of his career, making 1,125 starts in that number. He ran all but 60 of his starts in the #43 car, and out of his 200 total wins, 192 were earned while driving #43.

And? Although unfortunately 36 horses died in Tuesday’s tragedy, a few survived. There were several more in the barn at the time of the fire—a total of 43 to be exact. How about that?

NASCAR is all about horsepower, and it has also become synonymous with MAGA. Randolph County was then a brilliant choice for the elite’s lunar new year equestrian immolation in that the whole affair doubled as a NASCAR-redneck joke.

Ouch, that burns.

Tuesday also brought news of the death of Civil Rights icon Jesse Jackson, founder of the Rainbow Coalition. Now I’ve written elsewhere about the longstanding occult objective of “building a rainbow bridge to Lucifer,” so I’m not going to elaborate further here—mainly because I don’t think that’s the primary intended reference, as good as it may be.

(Left) Leslie Huggins as Lucifer in Kenneth Anger's 1966 occult classic Lucifer Rising. Photograph: Sprüth Magers. (Right) Jesse Jackson on the balcony of the Lorraine Motel in Memphis with Martin Luther King, Jr., shortly before King was assassinated. Jackson claimed that he held the dying MLK in his arms and got King’s blood on his shirt—some eyewitnesses disputed his account.

No, I think there was a different reason that Jesse (“God’s gift” in Hebrew) was ushered off into the Great Beyond on this particular day, the start of the Year of the Fire Horse and the day of 2026’s first “Ring of Fire” eclipse. I think that it was just a mean joke, like the release of the original Planet of the Apes the day before King’s assassination.

Although I could be wrong about this, after having studied these sorts of morbid events for over 15 years, I’m of the opinion that Jackson’s death was timed to this fire-themed date because of his last name—no, not Jackson. His birth name...Burns.

Daily Mail US

@Daily_MailUS

Tucker Carlson 'DETAINED' in Israel: Journalist 'dragged into interrogation room' as explosive interview sparks diplomatic firestorm

From dailymail.co.uk

1:26 PM · 2/18/26 · 109K Views

So that's why Tucker didn't respond when I texted yesterday's blog him this morning.